HARRISBURG, Nov. 7.—The acrimony of a seven-months' gubernatorial campaign that shook Pennsylvania to her political foundations reached its climax today in the closing appeals of the state-wide candidates.

Tomorrow from seven a. m. until eight p. m. an electorate numbering some 4,500,000 voters will write the verdict that even now defies prediction.

By Wednesday morning the Keystone state—Republican for 44 years until the Roosevelt tide carried a Democratic administration into power—will know its new governor and United States senator. The 272 state offices being filled include also a lieutenant-governor and internal af-

A flock of wild ducks landed on the Neshaunock creek near the North street bridge Saturday and attracted considerable attention. Most of them were what are usually called "dippers," being dark colored and smaller than mallards. They were on their way south and stopped off here to pick up a bite to eat.

Attorney Charles R. Davis spent Saturday afternoon digging up bulbs and roots and storing them away in the cellar of his home. Charlie is very tender hearted and cannot bear to think of anything remaining in the cold, cold ground over winter.

Screen doors are now disappearing along with the flies and bugs. Many people leave their screen doors up until after Halloween to avert the danger of having their doors dented or glass broken. It doesn't seem long since the screen doors were put up, and it won't be long until they are needed again. Time sure flies.

Four youths put a skunk in the ocean at the Thompson school in Brady township, Butler county. They were headed up before an alderman who sentenced them to reimburse the school board for the damage. They will also have to pay the teacher for two days lost. It doesn't pay to be a bad boy.

Remember a few years ago when New Castle was sprinkled with fine earth from the dust bowls of the west, and we were led to believe that the whole middle west had gone with the wind? Well, it didn't go. These same dust bowls were back in production this year, and good crops were raised. Which merely goes to show that calamity howlers don't always make good.

Election Boards Required
To Make Return Of Vote
As Soon As Count Is Made

County commissioners finished the distribution of ballots today, the last to go out being those for the City of New Castle. When the commissioners' office opens tomorrow morning it will be kept open continuously until the election returns are all in. Chief Clerk William A. Eakin will be in charge.

Under the election laws election boards must make a return of the vote cast to the county commissioners' office, as soon as the vote is properly tabulated. As the ballot is short, it is expected that a good portion of the county will be in by midnight tomorrow.

However, the office will be open all night if it is found to be necessary. The election judges making the return will be paid as soon as their returns have been accepted.

Registration Clerk Thomas Edmunds, reports that all of the registry lists have been delivered throughout the city and county. He will be on the job tomorrow morning ready to answer any calls that may result for mixups at the polls. Court will also be in session for the immediate disposition of any cases that may require attention.

German Embassy Secretary

PARIS, Nov. 7.—A youth who sought revenge for the sufferings of Jews walked into the German embassy today, suddenly drew a pistol, and seriously wounded Ernst von Rath, the third secretary.

Asking for a high official—he apparently bore no special malice for von Rath—the young man cried: "I want to take revenge on you for the sufferings your fellow-countrymen have caused my fellow Jews."

Overpowered by the embassy staff and taken to jail, the gunman gave his name as Herschel Seibel Grynspan and his age 19. He readily confessed his motives to police.

Von Rath was hit twice, one bullet lodged in the German's lung and another in his liver.

President Of Roundhead Association Dies Last Evening After Short Illness

LIKENESS IS ON GETTYSBURG COIN

James Power Sankey, aged 91, pioneer New Castle resident and president of the 100th Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry association, the Roundheads, died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Thomas W. Henderson, of 214 Noble avenue, Crafton, Pa., Sunday evening at 6:20 o'clock after an illness of two weeks.

Mr. Sankey contracted a slight cold about two weeks ago, and because of his age and the fact that his constitution had become weakened, was put to bed. He gradually became weaker, death resulting principally from the infirmities of age last evening.

He had always maintained an active interest in the Roundhead association and attended all of its reunions, held each summer in the Presbyterian church here, known as Old White Hall, from which the unit marched away to the Civil War.

Housing Authority

Dunlap's Motion Claims Such Would Be Waste Of Money

During council meeting in city hall today councilmen adopted a motion submitted by Streets Director William H. Dunlap which instructed the city solicitor to oppose any attempt to have a local housing board authority created here.

The motion said that to create such an authority for this city would be a needless waste of money. In March some citizens presented a petition to the governor asking that an authority be created and November 18 has been designated for the hearing of evidence before the state housing board that a local authority is necessary here.

With leaders of both parties claiming victory, Lawrence county goes to the polls Tuesday, November 8, as a part of an army of nearly 4,000,000 voters who will decide the political color of the state administration for the next four years.

The vote in this county will probably be no runaway for either party. Leaders of both parties are claiming victory. The total vote will probably approximate 35,000 out of the nearly 44,000 registered.

See Few Split Tickets

From the indications expressed on surface investigation, it looks as though there would be few split tickets. The desire to carry their tickets through has been stressed by leaders of both Republican and Democratic parties and with minor exceptions this will probably be done.

Over the week the usual last minute rallies, meetings and speeches were in vogue. The one thing stressed was the necessity of getting out to vote.

Today marks the last chance to snare votes for candidates and party heads. Around the headquarters of the parties can be seen workers, spectators and officials. Cars must be arranged for, watchers' certificates arranged for and the usual last minute preparations completed.

Polls Open 7 A. M. to 8 P. M.
The polls open at seven o'clock Tuesday morning and close Tuesday night at eight o'clock. Immediately after the count is completed, election board officials are required to take the return sheets to the court house.

On the ballot given the voter in the city tomorrow the lists of candidates appear as follows:

(International News Service)
COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 7.—Both the Democratic and Republican high commands professed today to see victory by wide margins for their nominees in tomorrow's important Ohio referendum on the New Deal, but non-partisan bystanders expected to see a photo-finish.

Two years ago President Roosevelt carried the "barometer" state by almost 620,000, sweeping to victory with him the entire Democratic state ticket and all but two of Ohio's 24 congressmen.

But a landslide for either U. S. Sen. Robert J. Bulkley, 100 per cent New Dealer, or Robert A. Taft, his Republican opponent, when an estimated 2,750,000 Ohio voters go to the polls tomorrow, seemed exceedingly remote. Straw canvasses showed conflicting results, and there was no more unanimity among political observers as to the outcome.

The same was true of the bitter gubernatorial contest between John W. Bricker, Republican, and Charles Sawyer, who defeated Gov. Martin L. Davey to win the Democratic nomination.

Cleveland May Decide
For the answer in both races observers will look to populous Cuyahoga county (Cleveland) which casts better than 15 per cent of the total vote of the 88 counties.

The impact of the car had tossed him clear of the highway into a field, or the animal had run on into the field and toppled over.

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—What promises to be one of the most sensational cases in recent years opens here today when Robert Irwin, 30, the so-called "mad sculptor" and confessed triple slayer, goes on trial for first degree murder—the supreme penalty for which would be death in the electric chair.

Irwin strangled beautiful Veronica Gedeon, 20, artist's model, and her mother, Mary, and stabbed Frank Byrnes, a roomer, to death with an ice pick in the Gedeon apartment on Easter Sunday morning, 1937. Although indicted for all three murders, he is being tried specifically for the slaying of Byrnes.

Two hundred and fifty talesmen, were ordered to report this morning at the courtroom of Judge James G. Wallace.

Held Since June 1937
Irwin has been held in the tomb jail since he was brought back from Chicago where, on June 26, 1937, after he had been hunted for weeks, he suddenly surrendered to the Hearst newspapers in the "city room" of the Chicago Herald and Examiner. That day he nonchalantly walked into the bustling editorial room and announced:

"I am Robert Irwin, I'm wanted for murder."
Coolly smoking one cigarette after another, Irwin calmly dictated a statement in which he told how and

Sudden Drop In Temperature

In Rain Or Snow

(International News Service)
PITTSBURGH, Nov. 7.—A sudden drop in temperature which would send voters to the polls tomorrow in rain or even snow through western Pennsylvania, was forecast here today by Weatherman W. S. Brozman.

A showery condition in the morning will be followed by a temperature decline and light snow, Brozman predicted. The storm is on the way from the Rocky mountain states, which had their first general snowfall yesterday, he said.

The expected cold spell will put an end to the long spell of Indian summer enjoyed throughout the state. Yesterday, in Pittsburgh, the temperature soared to 75, breaking the previous heat record for November 6 established in 1888 and 1924.

Former Pittsburgh City
Solicitor Faces Charges

(International News Service)
PITTSBURGH, Nov. 7.—Former Solicitor Churchill Michard today was under $5,000 bond awaiting a court hearing for his alleged part in taking bribes from lawyers in connection with this city's $350,000 consent verdict case.

In an information filed by District Attorney Andrew T. Park, the former solicitor was accused of taking at least $3,100 from Morris G. Levy himself under suspicion of withholding money from clients, to settle cases out of court.

It was Levy's "satisfactory statement" the district attorney said, which freed Michard's arrest. City investigators also allegedly found that Mayor Cornelius L. Seidly was the "high city official" who borrowed $750 from Attorney Levy, and then repaid the money within a specified time.

The district attorney's office today expected still further revealing testimony from another lawyer connected with the case, officials stated. It was claimed that further links between attorneys who promised clients large checks in return for "grease money" and city officials were forthcoming.

At present the mayor is out of town and could not be reached for comment on his loan from Levy.

AWAITS RESULTS OF

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Nov. 7.—As the off-year election campaign came to a close with heated charge and counter-charge, President Roosevelt rested on his oars here today and waited to place his own ballot in the box at the Hyde Park town hall tomorrow.

The president has made perpetuation of his New Deal policies a definite issue in this campaign. Boldly accepting the challenge of Republican claims that the political pendulum would be swung back, he has called for election of "experienced and liberal" candidates who could be depended upon to aid him in effecting "a reasonable continuity in liberal government."

Asks Support Of "Liberals"
Carefully refraining from appealing for election of a Democratic congress as Woodrow Wilson did in 1918, the president asked, on the radio, Friday night for support of "liberal candidates." White House attaches pointed out that he had sent a message to Minnesota en-

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—The long trail of Democratic land-slides and steadily diminishing Republican power in the states and in the nation—unbroken now in four consecutive elections—appeared to be at an end today as the off-year campaign drew to a noisy close.

For tomorrow, as upward of 40,000,000 people go to the polls to elect the 76th congress and governors in 32 states, the Republicans expect to hit the come-back trail—with their eyes on 1940.

See G. O. P. Gains

The Republicans do not hope or expect to win control of congress. That is politically, and almost mathematically impossible. What they do hope and expect to accomplish tomorrow is to increase substantially their representation in both houses of congress, and to capture control of a number of state governments—all preparatory to rebuilding for 1940.

That the Republicans will score some gains tomorrow is conceded, even by the Democrats.
The principal questions are: How much? And where?

The "where" is equally as important as the "how much," perhaps more so. For if New York, Pennsylvania and Ohio, for instance, should go Republican it would be deemed of far greater significance than victory in Montana, Nevada and Idaho.

Eyes On 1940

This election has been grounded in and fought over with the leaders' eyes riveted on 1940, when a presidency is at stake. Tomorrow is merely the prelude for the show.

It has been a rather unusual campaign, unusual in the sense that it has failed to develop an outstanding national issue, save for the broad general issue of whether the voters like the New Deal or whether they don't. Generally speaking, all Republican candidates have attacked or criticized the New Deal, but they have pulled their punches or tempered their criticism of it in accordance with the degree of Mr. Roosevelt's personal popularity in their respective areas.

From a practical political standpoint, the degree of Republican success tomorrow can be measured in terms of governors elected, rather than in the gains chalked up in congress.

It will look well on paper for the Republicans to elect 75 additional members of the house and half a dozen senators, but in the currency of American politics it is more important for the Republicans to gain in the state governments.

For control in the states means patronage. Patronage means jobs. (Continued On Page Eleven)

With bated breath and tightened nerves the candidate awaits the vote, to find out if he is the guy or if he is another goat. Across the state the tom-toms throb, and speakers hurl their raucous war, until the air is rent with sound, and fancy dishes tell the bar. Its up to you and you and you, to say which man will win the race, and who shall take the usual oath when he assumes the lofty place. No matter how you cast your vote, get out and have your little say, it is a privilege you have, the weather's sixty six today.

Arrest 17 In Pittsburgh Dope Raids

Jail Peddlers Of Marihuana

More Than 40 Police Officers Take Part In Simultaneous Raids

MONESSEN MAN ACCUSED GROWER

(International News Service)
PITTSBURGH, Nov. 7.—Termination of a series of swift raids today saw 17 persons, alleged to be distributors and peddlers of the dread drug, Marihuana, in the county jail here.

The raids followed six weeks preparatory investigation by District Attorney Andrew T. Park and his chief of county detectives, Jerry Dwyer. It was stated that the police had broken one of the largest and most powerful Marihuana rings in this county in their action Saturday night and Sunday morning.

More than 40 police raced through sections of the city, McKees Rocks, McKeesport, the Hill district and Monessen in their roundup of alleged dope peddlers and distributors.

Little Resistance
Detectives said they encountered little, if any resistance, and that one prisoner readily confessed to selling the drug in cigar form. He told police, they said, that he sold the cigars to customers at the rate of 10 cents each, but peddlers could obtain them from him for five cents.

A Mexican, Angel Martinez, of Monessen, was arrested as being the chief grower of the drug and the chief source of supply in Allegheny county, according to police.

This is the first time in the past five or six years, District Attorney Park said, that the drug has been found actually growing in the county by the raiding squads.

Pearl Hockenberry, Primary Department; Mrs. R. E. Elmore, Junior Department; Miss Grace Hickok, Intermediate Department; Harold Miller for the Seniors, and Bert Cocher on behalf of the Adults.

Letters of congratulations were read from former pastors, Dr. P. H. Lynch, of Pittsburgh; Dr. P. B. McAllister, of Youngstown, and Rev. George M. Landis, of Fayette, also George P. Jones, of St. Cloud, Fla., and from the Highland U. P. Sunday school. Telegrams were received from cousins in Okmulgee, Okla., and Aunt Eliza and Uncle Day, of New York City.

H. L. Marvin on behalf of the Sunday schools of the New Castle district and the county, stated that Mr. Weller was the oldest superintendent in point of service and spoke glowingly of his honesty as a business man, a good man to work for, fine character as a citizen, he inspired the love and friendship of his neighbors and friends, and supported all things for the benefit of the community and as superintendent, with these attributes, he was a credit to his church and Sunday school.

Dr. Heaton, the pastor, said he was pleased to be able to deliver an eulogy to a person living, Mr. Weller, as he had already given 121 eulogies in this city to people that could not hear him. As a preacher he would take a text. Two of Mr. Weller's favorite texts are "Where there is no vision the people perish" and "The people had a mind to work." The pastor said he would add his text from 1 Romans, "Paul, a servant of Jesus Christ," a genuine conversion is necessary before becoming a servant. Mr. Weller had a heavenly vision as superintendent, a contagious enthusiasm for service, and a conciliatory spirit as leader, for cooperation, as servant of Jesus Christ.

Robert M. Strickler, president of the Lawrence County Sunday school, said he has enjoyed working with Paul for 24 years. Mr. Weller had been called to the platform. William Williams produced a silver plate and Mr. Strickler asked Mr. Weller to step forward and count on to the plate some silver dollars, the former had in his pockets, and there were 63, which were presented to Mr. Weller by his friends on his silver anniversary.

Mr. Weller responded and thanked all for the kind words that had been said in his behalf and that he was truly thankful for the wonderful cooperation of the officers, teachers and members of the school and that he had received much help and counsel from his wife. He said, "My desire has been that I should know the will of the Father through the Holy Spirit, in the direction of work and to Him, all the credit is given by me, for all the work I have done." A large number raised to their feet when the chairman asked how many attended the school 25 years ago. There were former members present from Wheeling, W. Va., Columbus, Niles, O., Monessen, Ellwood City, Sharon, Slippery Rock and other places.

On the platform was a basket of flowers donated by Mrs. Paul Weller in memory of Paul's mother's birthday.

Dr. Heaton pronounced the benediction.

that is an important asset. There are still great beds that have never been tapped, and which may become an important part of our development in the future.

Down at Ellwood City they are abandoning a toll bridge, because the tolls will not pay for the upkeep, let alone the original cost of the bridge. But tolls don't appear to be a thing of the past. Work has been started on a fifty million dollar super highway between Harrisburg and Pittsburgh, and it is expected that tolls will pay for it. Just let it down somewhere, as a sort of a prediction, that it won't be long after this road is completed until it will be saddled on to the taxpayers of the state.

Here's a tip for farmers. From the department of agriculture comes a report that beef cattle are getting scarce, and prices are likely to go higher. Looks logical for the great grazing lands of the west, where cattle were raised so cheaply, are blowing away. Cattle of the future must be raised on the smaller farms. There will always be a good market for beef, as long as city folks can make a down payment on a round steak.

The police found a grey suede glove belonging to Irwin and grains of plaster of Paris—sculptor's material—in the "murder apartment." A nation-wide hunt for Irwin began. It wound up with his surrender two months later in Chicago.

Tomorrow is the day we exercise our right to vote, and what a great privilege it is to be able to vote as one's conscience tells him, and to know that no one knows how he votes.

We often wonder who should have that privilege. We had to live in this country 21 years before we were allowed to vote, but anyone coming into this country from a foreign country, no matter how little knowledge he has, he may have that privilege granted him after five years.

Neither do we know of any big business concerns who allows anyone to vote at the election of officers but stock holders.

It might be a good idea for the big business concern, known as the United States, not to allow anyone to vote unless he or she at least owns one share of stock.

Vote the way you pray.

Sunday
Quiet and impressive was the wedding performed in St. Vitus church Saturday morning when Miss Caroline Naples, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Naples of 604 Pearson street, became the bride of Harry Palus, son of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Palus, 303 East Lutton street.

In the presence of a throng of relatives and friends of the couple the vows were exchanged at 9 o'clock with the Rev. Fr. Nicholas Demas officiating. He used the single ring service.

The bride was lovely in her gown of moire tulle, designed in the old-fashioned Victorian style, with a long train and leg-of-mutton sleeves. Her long veil was of fine lace and tulle, caught with a crown of seed pearls. She carried an arm bouquet of white roses and baby mums.

Mrs. Mary DiCarlo was maid of honor. She wore a peach satin gown, toe length, and matching brown velvet accessories. Her bouquet was yellow tea roses.

Surrounding the ceremony, a wedding dinner was served at a local dining hall at 1:30 with 50 friends and relatives attending. The all white theme predominated in the appointments throughout, and the traditional tiered wedding cake with miniature figures, centered the bridal table. Those serving were Laura Genoni, David Surizal and Ralph Turco.

At 4, a reception was held at the home of the bride for their friends and relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Palus departed at 8 o'clock on a wedding trip to Cleveland, O. and upon their return will reside at 303 East Lutton street.

Traveling the bride selected a two-piece suit lined with a matching top-coat, and accessories. She wore a shoulder corsage of white roses and baby mums.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Palus are associated with the National Pails company.

TO 43,000 LAWRENCE COUNTY MEN AND WOMEN!

THERE are over 43,000 men and women in Lawrence county on the list of eligible voters for the balloting of tomorrow.

Every one of these persons faces a supreme obligation and that is to go to the polls and cast a ballot.

There is scant excuse for vote slacking on Tuesday.

The issues of the campaign are sufficiently vital to every person in Lawrence county, to demand that a choice be registered at the election.

Do not let a minority decide this election. Make it your business to see that you have your say.

Never in recent years has there been anything like the necessity for a decisive stand by the voters at the polls.

The decision tomorrow in Pennsylvania and other large states will have a most important bearing on future developments in the nation.

Don't miss your chance to figure in that decision for Pennsylvania.

Get out and vote!

And remember when you do vote that your ballot is secret. There is no method by which anyone can ascertain how you marked your ballot. Secret voting is a guarantee of every citizen, and there will be no violation of that right on Tuesday.

SCOTTISH SABBATH

The recent "Sunday herring strike" of 2,400 Scottish "fishergirls" made curious reading for Americans. It was called as a protest against Sunday work on the part of English fishermen. That practice, the Scottish girls protested, was unfair competition, not to mention the impiety of it. There is no fishing or fish-work in Scotland on Sunday.

The women, as it happens, don't do the fishing themselves; they are merely fish-handlers, doing the packing. The quarrel may be primarily economic, but there seems to be also a religious factor. It is interesting to find that there is one country where Sabbath observance still seems to be taken seriously.

WARRING AGAINST PRESSURE GROUPS

In a recent article, Dr. Harley L. Lutz, professor of public finance at Princeton University, refers to "the pressure groups, those bands of determined minorities that gang up on legislators and administrators to promote some hobby or vested interest, regardless of the general good."

Fortunately, the American people are becoming increasingly aware of the lobbyists, the propagandists and the economic magicians who comprise these pressure groups. National and State laws are being passed to prevent the unrestrained exercise of selfish influence. The sinister, underhanded forces of ideological conspiracy no longer find it easy to conceal the hook of narrow prejudice with the bait of moral hypocrisy.

Legislative bodies, however, cannot afford to relax their vigilance or blandly assume that the problem has been solved once and for all. Pressure groups will pop back into the governmental picture with menacing effect unless officials charged with the responsibilities of public administration remain on the alert for each and every sign of class sabotage.

NOW HONORING COMPOSER OF "CARMEN"

Were Georges Bizet still alive he would no doubt smile rather wryly at tributes being paid him in Paris, where the 100th anniversary of his birth has just been celebrated. An erudite musician, a man of broad culture, whose masterpiece was the opera, "Carmen," Bizet was something of a tragic figure because he died three months after the famous opera was produced, embittered by the unfavorable reception accorded it.

"Carmen" was regarded as a failure by Parisian opera-goers of 1872, although Bizet himself had unbounded faith in the work and believed it would live and triumph in spite of the cool reception accorded it. Time has since more than approved his judgment. Since 1872 "Carmen" has been played and sung the world over and still remains today one of the half-dozen most popular operas of the lyric stage.

To modern music lovers it will always remain something of a puzzle why "Carmen" should at first have been thought to be a failure despite its fund of melody and the dramatic verity which underlies it as opera. Boasting of one of the most striking plots in the entire range of opera, it is lavish in melody and even its minor personages speak an individual musical language.

Could it have been its theme was too tragic for the carefree Parisians of his time? The note of tragedy is strong. It makes itself felt in the gripping overture of the opera, is threaded through the colorful arias and lyrics and reaches high expression in the Toreador song.

And besides the obvious tragic note in the music of "Carmen" there is another pignantly muted one in that its composer died at 37, unaware of the great popularity his famous work would attain.

The Parent Problem

By Garry C. Myers, Ph. D.

RELIGIOUS FREEDOM FOR CHILD

THERE are parents who conscientiously believe they should not expose their child to any particular type of religion until he is old enough to think such matters through for himself. By doing so they certainly will cultivate freedom of choice in the child, and prevent emotional disturbance incident thereto. But that child almost surely will not choose to join any church at all. Some parents would, of course, prefer not to have their children ever become church members. Will Make It Early

Those parents, however, who wish to nurture spiritual growth in their children, more or less of a traditional sort, will not trust to late exposure. They will make it as early as possible, and they will not trust to the church alone. They will surround the child with religious atmosphere in his very early infancy and let him breathe it in long before he knows what it's about. It is, moreover, good psychology to assume that if the child attends Sunday school at an early age with both his parents, and later the church services of their choice, and goes regularly as a matter of course, without argument or emotional annoyance he will, provided his parents have gained his co-operation and lived happily with him, choose on his own accord to become a member of their church.

Suppose your child, having gone happily with your family to Sunday school and church, does become a member of that church. And suppose, at high school age or later, he begins to raise questions about the faith he has espoused. If so, let him feel free to do so. Just calmly state to him your point of view.

Another Faith
But suppose he chooses to embrace another faith entirely different from yours, or even expresses doubt about the existence of God.

I do not know how well I might behave under such a trial, but I should hope that if a child of mine, reared in the Protestant family of a certain type, should choose to turn Catholic, or Mohammedan, or even Atheist, I might try hard not to suggest in any manner to him that he had in the least dishonored his parents. I should hope that we might still remain good comrades. I should try to find what in my religion, as I live, failed to satisfy him, still hoping that I might in silence win him back through my own example.

Though we parents might force our children to profess a certain faith, we cannot, by commanding them or by tugging at their heartstrings, compel them to espouse our beliefs. Anyway, we do not wish to cause our children to be hypocrites. We might, however, win them to our way. When they express religious doubts and disbeliefs, let us not argue or grow excited. Let us guarantee to them religious freedom.

The World AND THE Mud Puddles

ARE FRENCHMEN RELENTING?

The Count of Paris, pretender to the throne of France, flew to a suburb of Paris one day in the month of October, 1938, gave an interview urging restoration of the monarchy and flew back to Belgium.

That may sound like a joke to Americans, but it wouldn't have been a joke twenty years ago. In 1919, a pair of California chaps were invited to a party in Paris, at which a papier mache crown was put on by one of them. The party was on the date celebrated as King's Day. At about 1 A.M. they started home. As they passed under a street light a policeman half a block away saw that crown and blew his whistle. In a moment two policemen were questioning them. They had to prove that they were just a couple of crazy Americans and not fomenters of a royalist uprising.

Since 1848, when the royal family fled to England, no pretender to the French throne has been allowed to enter France until he died. Even when France was calling for all her friends for the World War, she would not let members of the House of Orleans enter, even to fight for her. For in royalist circles they still are referred to as His Majesty and Her Royal Highness and cling to the claim that they are the rightful rulers of the country.

When any of them die, the government relents and they can be brought back and buried in the lovely chapel at Dreux, in which only members of the House of Orleans are buried.

On each tomb is the marble effigy of the prince or princess whose dust rests there, and the mortal remains of nearly all of them are there—generations of them.

HINTS and DINTS

Sun sets tonight 4:52; sun rises tomorrow 6:36.

Brick paved streets make a terrible lot of noise. The auto tires just make a roar when they race over them. It seems to us when a brick street goes bad it should be covered with something that would not make a noise. This should be done instead of putting new brick in the worn parts.

To keep the average man under your thumb, it is necessary to give him a hand-out.

Most of what goes into the files might better go into the wastebasket.

No wonder Hitler hates religion. People can obey only one who says: "Thou shalt have no other gods before me."

Washington Traffic Nightmare Pedestrians Have Little Chance Street Arrangement Is Blamed

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Columnist

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 7.—Washington is the worst town in the country for automobile accidents. It is so bad that it even elicited a wail recently from a cabinet member—Secretary of Commerce Roper. Roper, to be sure, was not speaking exclusively of conditions in the capital; he mentioned the problem as of national proportions. There are few evils, he said, that there don't seem to be possible remedies for. However, he confessed that the auto slaughter apparently is impossible to put an end to—or so much as modify. Just why the Commerce Department should be especially concerned in the matter I don't know. It is, though, not long ago it issued a report to the effect that, somewhere in the United States, a flivver tragedy occurs once in every 15 minutes, on an average.

Washington Toll Heavy
Any way Washington has more than its fair proportion of them.

It isn't hard to understand the reason, if you're familiar with the capital. The normal American city is cut up by a lot of north and south, east and west streets, crossing one another at right and left angles. Their intersections are fearful hazards certainly, but there's a bit of sense to them. Washington not only has this criss-cross arrangement of its thoroughfares but also a multiplicity of diagonal avenues, involving a web every here and there, of eight strands, diverging in as many different directions. At the center of each of these foci is a cute little park, usually with a statue in the middle of it, and with a circle of streets, swishing off eight ways, all round-about it.

These circles look cute, but get into traffic across or around one of them is near-suicide.

Major Enfant, the Frenchman who planned Washington in George Washington's honor, perpetrated this homicidal arrangement.

Perhaps there were extenuating circumstances then. In the major's era there was only horse-drawn urban transportation. And a horse had sense and decency enough to dodge collision and to spare pedestrians if possible.

But the automobilist? Oh, murder!

Well, Washington officialdom is all torn up by its auto death rate. A bet campaign is being waged to improve the situation. How? By curbing the autoists? No! It's to be done by penalizing pedestrians. The idea is that a pedestrian obstructs traffic.

In my youth a pedestrian had the right of way across the street.

It was taken for granted that he didn't want to be run over. Now the assumption is that he's a nuisance, and the burden of the proof is on him to show that he didn't delay some buzz-wagon.

Secretary Roper's theory is that automotive regulation ought to be nationalized; it's confusing to autoists to have one schedule of rules to observe in one place and another schedule to be observed in others.

Curse of Pedestrianism
We have in Washington a traffic controller named M. O. Eldridge—a fine old chap.

I once had occasion to write a news story dealing with the murderous character of the capital's traffic conditions. Director Eldridge read it and it made him pretty sore. He came up to my office, with blood in his eye, to see me about it.

"I know what's the matter with you," he said. "You've violated our regulations, and have been, very properly, called to account for it. Now you're raising a holler."

"Mr. Eldridge," I answered truthfully, "I'm one of a mere handful of Americans who never owned or drove an automobile."

Rage died out of Director Eldridge's face. Astonishment supplanted it.

"Say," he commented, "I'm going to tell the Smithsonian Institution about you. It'll be wild about you as a curiosity."

Yeah! An almost extinct pedestrian!

HALLOWEEN THOUGHT

They came, as if to frighten me, And glad was I such fright to know.

Such healthy, happy ghosts to see With eyes, behind their masks, aglow.

I wished such sprites could long remain Boo-hoing at my window pane.

They held their jack-o-lanterns high To scare me with their yellow flares. Not knowing just how pleased was I.

To hear them where the shutter bangs. The nicest ghosts I've ever seen Were those that walked on Halloween!

Oh, not much longer will it be So swiftly childhood runs to age They'll come on Halloween to me Arrayed in ghostly equipage! But, seeing them grown-up and staid, Then truly shall I be afraid.

The Great Game Of Politics

By FRANK R. KENT

(Copyright, 1938)

Tuesday's Elections

FOR two years things have been accumulating to make the election on Tuesday important. For one thing, they afford the voters of the country their first real chance to express themselves since the great Republican sweep of 1936; for another, though there are no national candidates there are national issues, and in the larger states, outside the deep south, the results will have a direct bearing upon the presidential campaign of 1940 as well as upon the session of congress which begins in January.

BY his letters, speeches and statements; by the activity of his aides; by the extent to which the federal relief organization has been used, and by his own unrelenting versatility in indorsing in one state—California—the soft-headed "Thirty Dollars Every Thursday" Mr. Dowgery as "a liberal in mind and heart" and in another—New Jersey—the creature of the hard-boiled Mr. Hague, whom no stretch of the imagination could make look like a liberal—by these and other things, Mr. Roosevelt has so completely injected himself into this off-year campaign as to take away in most debatable states the local character of the contest. That every ounce of the White House weight and every asset of the administration has been thrown into the fight is convincing proof of the New Deal belief that the outcome will color the whole political picture of the future.

IT IS, of course, possible that the returns may give both sides equal reason for congratulation. They may leave neither with clear ground for a general victory claim and thus be devoid of national significance. But that is highly improbable.

There is a far stronger probability that one way or another a definite state of mind will be disclosed in the people from which 1940 deductions will be inescapable. For example, if the Democrats win in New York by an emphatic majority, if they hold Pennsylvania, Ohio, Michigan, Minnesota and Massachusetts; if they keep the Republican house gains below forty-five and their senate gains below four—then the case can be made for the president will have triumphed, the Republicans will have taken another licking and Mr. Roosevelt regained much of the prestige lost in the "purple" of last summer and the court fight of 1937. Moreover, and this perhaps is the most vital issue at stake—it will have established the practical impossibility of beating an administration able to finance its fights with public funds. It will have measurably sustained the contention that the enormously expanded federal machine cannot be reversed so long as the money hold-out. And it will have increased the prospect of Roosevelt domination of the coming session of congress and of the next national convention. In brief, it will put the president again at the top of the political heap.

ON THE other hand, if the Republicans recapture the governorships in five or six important states; if they elect from 45 to 60 new members of the house and gain from 4 to 8 senatorial seats—it unquestionably will be indicative of a turn in the tide. The party at which Mr. Roosevelt is shipping will have been greatly accelerated. The chances of both congress and the Democratic party freeing themselves from his control will have been greatly enhanced. The whole New Deal will have been dealt a body blow. There will be justification for reading into the returns the fact that the people have had enough of Mr. Roosevelt and his policies; that in 1940 they will look to other leadership.

THIS WILL be true even if Republican victories such as indicated do not include New York, because in that state the Lehman nomination gives to the New Deal cause a strength none other could. However, if the Lehman majority shows a shrinkage over the $21,000 of two years ago, there will be little national political nourishment for the New Dealers in the New York result—particularly when the character of Mr. Roosevelt's personal appeal is considered. Of course, should New York elect a Republican governor, the handwriting on the wall will be so clear that be one not afflicted with complete political astigmatism can miss its meaning.

WPA Administrator Harry Hopkins was with the president today, fresh from a coast-to-coast swing.

He also predicted that Sheridan Downey and Culbert Olson, Democratic candidates for senator and governor respectively in California, would win while the $30-Every-Thursdays plan which the president disapproved would lose.

Dr. Dafoe's Column On The Quintuplets And The Care Of Your Children

EVERY CHILD IS AN INDIVIDUAL

Your child is an individual—a distinct person—right from the day of his or her birth, and he or she should be treated as such. Even in the case of twins, they are different from the day they draw their first breath.

The Dornes Quintuplets are all different. I know this very well, for although they have looked so alike, and although science has labeled them identical twins, born from one egg, I have seen their characteristics vary one with another.

Of course, when they were born, they all looked exactly alike. So much so, in fact, that we had to label them with tags. That first day they became A, B, C, D, and E. When they were a couple of days old they were given the names they still wear, and again they had to be tagged. If we hadn't done that, we couldn't have told one from another, and one or two of them might have gotten more than their share of the bath.

Yes, they looked identical, but when we investigated we found they weren't. Their arms, legs, feet and toes were all the same length, but when we measured to secure scales we discovered their weights were different. The difference in weight—small at times—remained constant. Besides this, Marie was the shortest in height. While her sister measured 13 inches in height, she was a scant foot. Their eyes were all blue, which didn't help any when it came to telling them apart. What I am trying to point out is that children are all different, even Quintuplets. Right from the first we found we had to treat them all differently. Things that would work with Yvonne or Emilie made no impression in Marie or Cecile.

For instance we found that Emilie took illness harder than the rest. Marie, the smallest, had more to overcome than the others, but she turned out to be the toughest. The Quints took longer than the ordinary child in showing real individual characteristics. They were premature children of multiple births, having a lot to overcome. They were still individuals, but their individual traits naturally did not show so rapidly as that of a normal baby.

This should be a comfort to some parents who think their baby isn't responding as rapidly as it should. Very often when he first sees the child, the father is disappointed. He expected something "a little more human," he had a secret hope that he would see it wobbling aim. When friends remark how much the child looks like him, he isn't quite sure whether they are kidding him or not.

Parents often expect children to take after them, to have their characteristics. That is a bad attitude, for the child may not be a bit like the immediate parents; he may take after some faraway ancestor.

So do not treat your baby as a plaything. Watch carefully as he develops, see the way he is going, what his leanings are. Encourage these, and plan for the future. And loving goes a long way.

Reflections By J. K.

It was Robert Benchley who first told about the man who went to the bakery and said he wanted a cake in the form of the letter S. The baker said "I'll take three days, and when the man called for it, he said, 'Oh, that's a script S. I wanted a block letter.' That, the baker told him, would take three days more. So he called for it, and it was all right, and the baker said, 'Where shall we send it?' And the man said, 'Oh, I'll eat it right here.'

When Darwin was visiting the country house of a friend, the two boys of the family thought they would play a trick on the scientist. They caught a butterfly, a grasshopper, a beetle and a centipede and out of these evolved a strange composite insect. They took the centipede's body, the butterfly's wings, the grasshopper's legs and the beetle's head, glued them carefully together and presented it to Darwin for identification. Darwin looked at the bug and then at the boys. "Did you notice whether it hummed when you caught it, boys?" "Yes," they answered. "Then," said Darwin, "it's a hum-bug."

An enthusiastic lady once met Sir James Barrie at a dinner party. "O, Sir James," she exclaimed, "I do so love your plays. Are they all successes like Peter Pan?" "Well," Sir James replied, "they either Peter out, or they Pan out."

When Richard Harding Davis was in London in 1892, he once sat opposite Oscar Wilde whose living had made him both courted and feared by English society.

Said Mr. Wilde to Mr. Davis, "So you are from Philadelphia, ah, yes! The city in which Washington is buried."

"Nonsense," said Davis cheerfully, "he's buried at Mount Vernon." Now, in 1892, people did not say Nonsense to Mr. Wilde, however carelessly. A moment later, Mr. Wilde said, speaking of a certain artist:

"Do let's hear what Mr. Davis thinks. Americans talk so confusingly of art."

"I never talk about things when I don't know the facts," Davis replied. For a moment Mr. Wilde was silent; then retorted, "That must limit your conversation fearfully."

Another Book By Girl Scout Staff Writer Available

Czechoslovakia, whose unhappy political situation at this time is so familiar to the whole world, is the scene of a new book by Pjeril Hess of New York City. Miss Hess, who is a member of the Girl Scout national staff and the author of many books for teen-age girls, has written three of them about young people in a happier era in Czechoslovakia.

The Public Library has a number of Miss Hess's books, and now that the New Castle Scouts have their own bookshelf—they will be even more interested in knowing about good stories for girls.

Miss Hess's books on Czechoslovakia, which include "The Dotted Falcon," "The House of Many Towers," and her newest one, "Castle Camp," are based on actual experiences she shared after the World war when she was active in the rehabilitation work in that country, and aided the students at the University of Prague to build their student hall.

Both Miss Hess and Edward Caswell, who did the illustrations for her book, have been recently decorated with the Order of the White Lion by the former Czechoslovakian government.

WHEAT OR STAFF OF LIFE
To The Editor,
New Castle News,
New Castle, Pa.
Dear Sir:

Our government is trying to reduce production of wheat. Naturally the major food plant, wheat, is grown very extensively throughout the world.

It occupies 300 million acres a year in 50 different countries as follows: United States 57 1/2 million acres, China, commonly thought of as a rice rather than a wheat country, 46 million acres, Union of Soviet Socialist republics 43 million acres, India also commonly thought of as a rice country 29 1/2 million acres, Argentina 16 million acres, France, Italy and Spain together have a total of 35 1/2 million acres of wheat, and Australia grows in 10-14 million acres.

The United States and Canada combined account for more than 79 1/2 million or over one fourth of the world's 300 million acres. Wheat culture in the United States began in the seventeenth century and moved westward with the settlement of the country. One of the first things done by colonists and settlers was to start growing wheat. It was shown in the Jamestown colony as early as 1611 and at Plymouth, Mass. soon after 1621. In California as early as 1770 coming from Mexico and the West Indies.

In 1937, 23,364,000 bushels of wheat were grown in Pennsylvania. In 1937 685,102,000 bushels were grown in the United States. Corn was used formerly for bread before we knew anything about wheat. The first definite date in the history of corn, is November 3, 1492, when the plant was brought to the attention of Columbus. Columbus refers to it as growing in Cuba, Santo Domingo, Trinidad and the mainland of South America. The time required for corn to reach its present development cannot be estimated with any accuracy but it must have taken many thousands of years.

Now, in many families, would say 85 per cent of grown ups would not enjoy their morning meal without coffee. Coffee is grown on trees similar to cherries. Its leaves are evergreen and the blossoms are white and are fragrant and similar to daisies. The fruit is a red berry about the size of a cherry which contains two kernels lying side by side. These coffee beans are green. The coffee tree is native to Asia. In 1718 it was brought to the Western Hemisphere by the Dutch. It is now the chief product of all tropical countries. In 1912, 863,131,000 pounds of coffee were consumed in the United States and in 1930, 1,728,509,000 pounds were consumed. I thank you, C. D. GLOSTER, P. O. Box, 81, City.

British Bombing Planes Make New Record For Long Flight

Make Flight Of Over 7,162 Miles

Two Bombers Land In Australia After Take-Off From Egypt

EXCEED RECORD MADE BY RUSSIANS

DARWIN, Australia, Nov. 7.—Great Britain, with a brilliant flight of two big bombing planes touching three countries, today wrested the long-distance non-stop record from Soviet Russia.

When the planes landed here after a perilous hop across the shark-infested Timor Sea, they had covered an estimated 7,162 miles in 48 hours, five minutes. Their starting point was Ismailia, Egypt.

Shatter Records
The record they shattered was set on July 4, 1937, by three Russian airplanes headed by Mikhail Gromov, who soared from Moscow to San Jacinto, Calif., 6,306 miles in 62 hours, 3 minutes.

"We had an excellent trip," said squadron leader R. Kellie, 33-year-old commander of the British flight. "Apart from storms over the East Indies, we experienced no discomforts."

A third bomber was forced to land at Kupang, on Timor Island, where it refueled and continued to Darwin.

The three planes will remain here four days, then continue to Sydney.

Wonderful Flight
All eight men under Kellie were under 30 years of age.

"It was a wonderful flight," they commented. "We have never felt better."

Maintaining close contact with each other, the planes flew by way of Persia, the Indian Ocean, Bay of Bengal, Andaman Islands, Borneo, and the Timor Sea.

All the men were heated suits. Their only provisions for the two-day hop were chicken, chocolate, fruit, orange juice and coffee.

George Loudon Pens Army Trip Review

From the pen of Sergeant George Loudon of the United States Army air corps, a former New Castle resident known to many here, comes a vivid new minigraphed review, entitled "A Trip to the San Blas Islands and a Visit to Puerto Bello." He made the trip last May.

Loudon himself calls it a "thrilling drama of the romance of the San Blas Islands" and, at the outset, dedicates his work to Principal F. L. Burton of Ben Franklin and Principal F. L. Outh of Senior High "and all the teachers of my grade, junior and senior high days."

From time to time young Loudon has informed New Castle residents of his Army experiences through The News. His newest work is a distinct credit to him.

Loudon is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Loudon of 821 Lathrop street.

CLOSING APPEALS

BEING MADE TODAY

fares secretary, along with all congressional seats, half the state Senate and the full state house membership.

As governor-elect Pennsylvania will have either Judge Arthur H.
James, Republican, or Charles Alvin Jones, Democrat. Its senator-elect will either be Gov. George H.
Earle, the political newcomer of four years ago, or Senator James J. Davis, Republican incumbent, who has spent a good part of his adult life in public office.

Watched by Nation

Second only to New York in national importance, the outcome of Pennsylvania's voting tomorrow is regarded as at least a partial test of New Deal strength for the 1940 presidential race. The clear-cut issue of a choice between Roosevelt and G. O. P. policies has been dimmed by sensational charges of Democratic graft and counter-accusations of "special privilege control" in the G. O. P.

The final campaign week-end was marked by victory statements from both party chairmen as the candidates themselves closed weeks of stumping with radio addresses from home territories.

One development important on the Democratic side also was recorded—an endorsement of Earle's candidacy for the Senate from Postmaster-General James A. Farley,
Democratic national chairman.

Final Campaign Appeals

Although the Democratic closing itinerary was unannounced here,
Judge James planned a final radio
address from Philadelphia tonight.
He expected to return then to his home in Plymouth, Luzerne county

Eight Boxing Bouts Will Be Staged Tonight

Mickie Rubin And Owen Willis Slated To Box In Final Bout

FANS LIKELY TO WITNESS KNOCKOUTS

Tonight is punch night in the Arena, and possibilities are that previous to the sounding of the last bell in the last round of the final bout some "K.O." punches will have been delivered. This assumption is based upon the fact that included among the 16 amateur scrappers are some lethal scoundrels.

Many of the boxers who will appear in the eight battles will be showing here for the first time, and if past performances of newcomers hold true, each of the strangers will try his utmost to make good with New Castle fandom.

The top role will be filled by heavy-hitting Mickie Rubin of this city and Owen Willis of Pittsburgh. According to Tommy Leach, Jefferson A. C. matchmaker, Willis is said to be one of the better 175-pounders of Pittsburgh.

And he will need to be in order to keep seeking with Rubin, who has been bowling over all his recent opponents. Those who were dumped for the count, either via the 10-second rule or technical knockout, being George Segerman, Joe Bero and Joe Popicki, the latter going out twice.

Rubin is reported to be in the pink of condition. He has trained faithfully in the Jefferson A. C. gymnasium. He intends tonight, he told his tutor, Jimmie Dine, to follow Jimmie's instructions to the letter and try to turn in another knockout.

Covelli vs. Tipton

Armand Covelli, local southpaw heavyweight, has been matched to take on Ernie Tipton of the Greater A. C. Pittsburgh, in the next to last bout. Covelli has been "going good" here. Just how good Tipton is remains to be seen.

There are several other New Castle and Lawrence county amateur scrappers scheduled for action. In fact, the Jefferson A. C. entered to local ringsters for tonight's action. Two will be boxing the second time here and two others the first time here.

Blackie Petarr of this city, who already has a key to his record, will take on Frankie Clark, who has been carrying a rifle for Uncle Sam for several years. Clark returned to Bessemer last week. These boys will box at 130 pounds.

West Pittsburgh Represented

Buck Chambers of West Pittsburgh will oppose George Swakovic of the South Side. It will be Chambers' first trip into a ring, but the second for "Swat". The latter swung punches from all directions in his first scrap. They will weigh 160 pounds.

Sevete Miske of Princeton, who is drilled by Ray Ritchie, will journey from the rural district to the city to cast punches against John Janovic of Salem at 145 pounds. If Miske is as tough as his townsman, Billy Beale, a good fight is in prospect.

Mike Kabias of Warren meets Tommy Dalrymple of Niles at 150 pounds. Kabias beat Young Stars, Jay Ketchell, but dropped a hard fight via a decision to Johnny Como. Dalrymple will be making his debut here tonight.

George Long, Niles, beat Jess Robinson some weeks ago and will tackle Tony Plaggi of Salem tonight at 130 pounds, and Jack Sover of Niles and Wilbur West of Salem ought to put on a sweet middle-weight battle.

The first bell will ring at 8:30 p. m.

The officials will be seated immediately before the first battle begins. The Arena is heated and can accommodate a crowd of thousands and a large crowd is expected to witness the battles.

RYANTOWN BASEBALL TEAM WILL MEET

Manager Joe Samuels of the Ryantown baseball team has called an important meeting for Wednesday night at 7:30 o'clock at his home for all players on the Ryantown team. The latter part of the 1938 City baseball season, Mr. Samuels asks that the players turn in all uniforms and equipment.

Rambling Around World Of Sports

Nick Albert, former New Castle high star linebacker, who was injured in a recent independent tussle, is improving. He's still limping around on a crutch. Bessemer high, the only undefeated and untied team, collides with one of its major obstacles this Friday—Lynchville, Ohio. In 19 battles, the Cement City eleven hasn't dropped a decision. Note to district grid scouts: Howard Currie and Francis Pitzer, Shenandoah gridsmen who quit the Class B ranks last week, have something. It wouldn't hurt to look 'em over. You might find something by watching Bessemer.

Looking ahead... During a few spare moments we did a little crystal gazing and saw, among other things, a crack "Red Hurricane" machine in '40. The backfield will be smothered with double A material. Maggie and his accurate arm. Sands and his bull-like way of splashing through the line. Parou, Izoo twins and General Lee will all be available for backfield duty. And, this above the average in any man's land. Unless something unforeseen happens, "Dime" Biddle will remain at center in his last year at high school. Castrucci and Piccirillo will handle the guard posts with Francis and Scarazzo at tackles. Toscano will take over one of the end berths. We couldn't find another wineman. This crew of wreckers, together with a number of other promising athletes, should give New Castle another "topnotch" combination.

Army's little mule mascot was a gift to the "kaydeis" from Ecuador's minister to Washington. Freddie St. Thomas, of Philippi, is the only American playing "jai alai" professionally. Drop-kicking is practically a lost art because place-kicking is simpler. Equipment manufacturers report that only three percent of America's golfers are left-handed. Sammy Sneed, noted golfer, has set up a record by winning $17,572.83 so far this year and there is still to be contested for.

Stronger Note In Stock MarketInfluence Of Election Result
Is Also Apparent In
Trading Of DayBy LESLIE GOULD

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—The stock market started the new week on a stronger note today after the indifference of recent sessions.

Influence of tomorrow's election, however, continued apparent in restriction of trading activity. Combined with this was the Armistice Day holiday on Friday, making two for the week.

The outstanding group was aviation. They were stimulated by Washington reports that President Roosevelt would recommend a huge increase in the army air force, estimates amounting to 7,000 airplanes and more. The inactive Wright Aero nautical spurred more than six points. Douglas gained more than two and Glenn Martin nearly as much. The others were active and higher. Sizeable gains also occurred in the aviation shares on the curb.

Blue chips in chemicals scored sizeable gains. DuPont and Allied were up a point each. Johns-Manville rose a point in an otherwise quiet market for building shares.

General Motors was higher in advance of the directors meeting late today at which an extra dividend was anticipated. Chrysler improved also.

Probe Death Of
Scottsdale Man

(International News Service)
UNIONTOWN, Pa., Nov. 7.—County detectives, apparently unconvinced that the death of Kenneth W. Dull, 34, of Scottsdale, who died in the Connellsville hospital of a gunshot wound, was accidental, today continued their investigation into the shooting.
"I am not entirely satisfied that the death was accidental," County Detective John C. Wall said, and added that he has "additional information" regarding Dull's death.
Dull was wounded when his gun exploded and burned him about the face a week ago. At the time his wounds were not considered serious, but Wednesday he was taken to the Connellsville hospital, where he died a few hours later.

Friars Begin
Mission Here

Thousand Women Attend
Initial Service In St.
Mary's Last Night

SERVICES WILL
LAST TWO WEEKS

At the request of the Reverend Father Peter J. McKenna, the Franciscan Fathers of New York inaugurated a parish mission at Saint Mary's church last evening. This week the mission will be conducted for the ladies of the parish. The attendance at the opening service at 7:30 p. m. was larger than anticipated. About one thousand women attended, among them many non-Catholic women.

Accommodations will be made for a larger crowd this evening. The girls attending Senior High school will attend the evening and morning services with their sisters and mothers.

Last evening Father Malachy Kain, O. F. M., spoke on the immortality of the human soul. He gave as his text the words of Christ: "What doth it profit a man if he gain the whole world and suffer the loss of his own soul? Or what exchange shall a man give for his soul? For the Son of Man shall come in the glory of heaven with his angels and then shall he render to every man according to his works."

The mission for the boys and girls will be conducted on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of this week at 4 o'clock.

Sally Rand Prepares
To Face Sentence

Declares "Fight Is Only Beginning" — Case Results
From Camera Episode

(International News Service)
LOS ANGELES, Nov. 7.—Leniency is unacceptable, was Sally Rand's stand as she prepared to go to court for sentencing today on two charges of battery resulting from her celebrated candid camera battle.
The blonde dancer, who made the country bubble and fan conscious could be given a total maximum jail sentence of 360 days or a fine of $2,000, or both.
"The fight is just beginning," she declared. "I want to find out for all time just how much privacy I have a right to expect."
That was the basis of the trouble which resulted in her conviction by a middle-aged "shock and beauty" jury of nine women and three men. Although she was clothed only in talcum powder while dancing at the Paramount theater before a couple of thousand patrons, Miss Rand believed her privacy was invaded by Ray Standford's picture taking from the front row.
Miss Rand was accused of mauling Standford and his girl friend, Hazel Drain, in getting possession of the pictures of the "peeping tom camera."

Mystery In Death
Of Sharon Woman

(International News Service)
SHARON, Pa., Nov. 7.—Mrs. Audre Jones, 27, a clerk in the city engineer's office, was found dead early today in the drafting room of the department under mysterious circumstances.
Dr. William Applegate, the coroner, said he was investigating the theories that she was asphyxiated while the city jail, located in the same building, was being fumigated yesterday, or that she took her own life. An autopsy was to be held today.
Mrs. Jones' husband, Alvin, was killed in an accident at the Sharon steel plant last spring. Mrs. Jones was doing extra work yesterday at about the same time the jail was undergoing fumigation.

Hiler says he'll keep on arming because the democracies can't be trusted. Some day they might treacherously refuse to hand over what he wants.

Rev. Harwood Party
Heard Twice Sunday

Large audiences at the City Rescue Mission greeted the Harwood evangelistic party on Sunday.
The service in the afternoon was in the nature of a rally day for the Sunday school, and the evangelist gave object lessons for the children. In the evening the party sponsored a program of music, after which a stirring message was brought by Rev. Carl C. Harwood. Services will continue nightly with the Victor Theremin, the instrument of mystery, being played each night. This instrument has thrilled the audience each evening. Children's services will be held after school at 4 on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday.

News And Views From Pennsylvania Capital

HARRISBURG, Nov. 7.—Although the Townsend plan is not playing a prominent part in the Pennsylvania election this year it is nevertheless present. The Townsend organization is endorsing and supporting numerous Pennsylvania congressional candidates.

A breakdown of the Townsend endorsements show that those candidates endorsed in Pennsylvania include 25 Republicans, eight Democrats and one fiscal clerk. The list of those recommended was stated, "is the final result of most careful consideration and painstaking research."

One thing newsmen and other persons in constant attendance at the house graft hearings have noticed is the undercurrent of friendliness between even the most bitter antagonistic members of the committee during arguments. One may charge the other with being unfair or "politically-minded" and then in an aside or openly a few moments later pass on some jesting remark that indicates none of the members is taking the exchange too seriously and that it's chief political repartee. . . of course, all of it

The Human Side Of The News (By EDWIN C. HILL)

"Ringer" is now almost a forgotten word in the colleges. Professional football partly accounts for that. There is today a fine opening in a legitimate business for former college players good enough for pro rating. It is true that they have to write off a lot for wear and tear and the period of obsolescence is short, but it's all out in the open and on the up-and-up and gives the lads a way-station on the road to a permanent job.

I remember back in Indiana, around the turn of the century, the big tramp athletes who used to circulate among the colleges of the kerosene circuit until they began to get gray around the ears. Some of them had been given a split-second exposure to some college curriculum, but usually there wasn't much pretense that they were certified students. After the football season, they would snooze through a few classroom sessions, sometimes to the end of the semester, but usually they drifted off quietly without causing the professor the bother of flunking them.

There was some heavy betting in the early days of cross-roads football. College rivalries pulled in the whole town and the leading hardware dealer, or perhaps a syndicate of the boys who made the book in the poolroom were sometimes geared in with undergraduate politicians. And sometimes the latter got orders to "go buy yourself a load of beef," for which the funds were, not too mysteriously, provided. That was shaded down a lot as the years went by, but the general renovation of college football has come along with the rise of professional football. It suggests an analogy with prohibition days and repeal. The bootlegger and the "ringer" both flourished in a foggy No Man's Land and passed
